A Reminder of Safety Rules for ANY adult interaction with children, young people at this church or in any church event outside of the premises
[this excerpt from the Baptist Union Child Protection Policy]

A relationship between an adult and a child or young person can never be a relationship between equals. This is because there is a potential for exploitation and harm of children and young people and therefore adults have a responsibility to ensure that an unequal balance of power is not used for personal advantage or gratification.

Adults working with children/young persons should always avoid behaviour which might be misinterpreted by others. They must act in a way that is considered to be safe practice.

This includes, but is not limited to:

- o Avoiding situations where they are alone with a child or young person
- o Ensuring that they are visible to others when with a child or young person
- o Using an open-door policy where possible – door open and visible to anyone passing
- o Treating all children and young people with respect at all times, regardless of their gender, race, religion, political beliefs, age, physical or mental health, sexual orientation, family and social background, and culture, economic status or criminal background
- o Avoiding circumstances where their behaviour (both verbal and physical) may be misinterpreted as hostile, suggestive, inappropriate, offensive, or neglectful
- o Promoting an environment where children and young people feel safe and comfortable in the care and contact of Eastside Baptist Church
- o Not transporting a child or young person, other than their own, alone at any time other than in an emergency situation
- o Not taking, or displaying, images of children and young people unless they have consent to do so from the child or young person's parents or caregivers, and the child or young person themselves if appropriate
- o Ensuring that all interaction and communication with children and young people, by whatever means, is transparent and open to scrutiny.

Police vetting

All Church workers working with children, either directly or indirectly, must undergo police vetting. Police vetting will be carried out on all Church workers over the age of 16 and will be repeated a minimum of every three (3) years thereafter.

Until such time as the police vetting has been completed, and the results have been received, all newly appointed Eastside Baptist Church workers working with children will be supervised in their role by a Police vetted Church worker and will not be permitted to work alone or carry out any alternative duties.

Training

Appointed workers in this area will receive full child safety training.

A Reminder of Safety Rules for ANY adult interaction with children, young people at this church or in any church event outside of the premises
[this excerpt from the Baptist Union Child Protection Policy]

A relationship between an adult and a child or young person can never be a relationship between equals. This is because there is a potential for exploitation and harm of children and young people and therefore adults have a responsibility to ensure that an unequal balance of power is not used for personal advantage or gratification.

Adults working with children/young persons should always avoid behaviour which might be misinterpreted by others. They must act in a way that is considered to be safe practice.

This includes, but is not limited to:

- o Avoiding situations where they are alone with a child or young person
- o Ensuring that they are visible to others when with a child or young person
- o Using an open-door policy where possible – door open and visible to anyone passing
- o Treating all children and young people with respect at all times, regardless of their gender, race, religion, political beliefs, age, physical or mental health, sexual orientation, family and social background, and culture, economic status or criminal background
- o Avoiding circumstances where their behaviour (both verbal and physical) may be misinterpreted as hostile, suggestive, inappropriate, offensive, or neglectful
- o Promoting an environment where children and young people feel safe and comfortable in the care and contact of Eastside Baptist Church
- o Not transporting a child or young person, other than their own, alone at any time other than in an emergency situation
- o Not taking, or displaying, images of children and young people unless they have consent to do so from the child or young person's parents or caregivers, and the child or young person themselves if appropriate
- o Ensuring that all interaction and communication with children and young people, by whatever means, is transparent and open to scrutiny.

Police vetting

All Church workers working with children, either directly or indirectly, must undergo police vetting. Police vetting will be carried out on all Church workers over the age of 16 and will be repeated a minimum of every three (3) years thereafter.

Until such time as the police vetting has been completed, and the results have been received, all newly appointed Eastside Baptist Church workers working with children will be supervised in their role by a Police vetted Church worker and will not be permitted to work alone or carry out any alternative duties.

Training

Appointed workers in this area will receive full child safety training.

A Reminder of Safety Rules for ANY adult interaction with children, young people at this church or in any church event outside of the premises
[this excerpt from the Baptist Union Child Protection Policy]

A relationship between an adult and a child or young person can never be a relationship between equals. This is because there is a potential for exploitation and harm of children and young people and therefore adults have a responsibility to ensure that an unequal balance of power is not used for personal advantage or gratification.

Adults working with children/young persons should always avoid behaviour which might be misinterpreted by others. They must act in a way that is considered to be safe practice.

This includes, but is not limited to:

- o Avoiding situations where they are alone with a child or young person
- o Ensuring that they are visible to others when with a child or young person
- o Using an open-door policy where possible – door open and visible to anyone passing
- o Treating all children and young people with respect at all times, regardless of their gender, race, religion, political beliefs, age, physical or mental health, sexual orientation, family and social background, and culture, economic status or criminal background
- o Avoiding circumstances where their behaviour (both verbal and physical) may be misinterpreted as hostile, suggestive, inappropriate, offensive, or neglectful
- o Promoting an environment where children and young people feel safe and comfortable in the care and contact of Eastside Baptist Church
- o Not transporting a child or young person, other than their own, alone at any time other than in an emergency situation
- o Not taking, or displaying, images of children and young people unless they have consent to do so from the child or young person's parents or caregivers, and the child or young person themselves if appropriate
- o Ensuring that all interaction and communication with children and young people, by whatever means, is transparent and open to scrutiny.

Police vetting

All Church workers working with children, either directly or indirectly, must undergo police vetting. Police vetting will be carried out on all Church workers over the age of 16 and will be repeated a minimum of every three (3) years thereafter.

Until such time as the police vetting has been completed, and the results have been received, all newly appointed Eastside Baptist Church workers working with children will be supervised in their role by a Police vetted Church worker and will not be permitted to work alone or carry out any alternative duties.

Training

Appointed workers in this area will receive full child safety training.

A Reminder of Safety Rules for ANY adult interaction with children, young people at this church or in any church event outside of the premises
[this excerpt from the Baptist Union Child Protection Policy]

A relationship between an adult and a child or young person can never be a relationship between equals. This is because there is a potential for exploitation and harm of children and young people and therefore adults have a responsibility to ensure that an unequal balance of power is not used for personal advantage or gratification.

Adults working with children/young persons should always avoid behaviour which might be misinterpreted by others. They must act in a way that is considered to be safe practice.

This includes, but is not limited to:

- o Avoiding situations where they are alone with a child or young person
- o Ensuring that they are visible to others when with a child or young person
- o Using an open-door policy where possible – door open and visible to anyone passing
- o Treating all children and young people with respect at all times, regardless of their gender, race, religion, political beliefs, age, physical or mental health, sexual orientation, family and social background, and culture, economic status or criminal background
- o Avoiding circumstances where their behaviour (both verbal and physical) may be misinterpreted as hostile, suggestive, inappropriate, offensive, or neglectful
- o Promoting an environment where children and young people feel safe and comfortable in the care and contact of Eastside Baptist Church
- o Not transporting a child or young person, other than their own, alone at any time other than in an emergency situation
- o Not taking, or displaying, images of children and young people unless they have consent to do so from the child or young person's parents or caregivers, and the child or young person themselves if appropriate
- o Ensuring that all interaction and communication with children and young people, by whatever means, is transparent and open to scrutiny.

A Reminder of Safety Rules for ANY adult interaction with children, young people at this church or in any church event outside of the premises
[this excerpt from the Baptist Union Child Protection Policy]

A relationship between an adult and a child or young person can never be a relationship between equals. This is because there is a potential for exploitation and harm of children and young people and therefore adults have a responsibility to ensure that an unequal balance of power is not used for personal advantage or gratification.

Adults working with children/young persons should always avoid behaviour which might be misinterpreted by others. They must act in a way that is considered to be safe practice.

This includes, but is not limited to:

- o Avoiding situations where they are alone with a child or young person
- o Ensuring that they are visible to others when with a child or young person
- o Using an open-door policy where possible – door open and visible to anyone passing
- o Treating all children and young people with respect at all times, regardless of their gender, race, religion, political beliefs, age, physical or mental health, sexual orientation, family and social background, and culture, economic status or criminal background
- o Avoiding circumstances where their behaviour (both verbal and physical) may be misinterpreted as hostile, suggestive, inappropriate, offensive, or neglectful
- o Promoting an environment where children and young people feel safe and comfortable in the care and contact of Eastside Baptist Church
- o Not transporting a child or young person, other than their own, alone at any time other than in an emergency situation
- o Not taking, or displaying, images of children and young people unless they have consent to do so from the child or young person's parents or caregivers, and the child or young person themselves if appropriate
- o Ensuring that all interaction and communication with children and young people, by whatever means, is transparent and open to scrutiny.

Police vetting

All Church workers working with children, either directly or indirectly, must undergo police vetting. Police vetting will be carried out on all Church workers over the age of 16 and will be repeated a minimum of every three (3) years thereafter.

Until such time as the police vetting has been completed, and the results have been received, all newly appointed Eastside Baptist Church workers working with children will be supervised in their role by a Police vetted Church worker and will not be permitted to work alone or carry out any alternative duties.

Training

Appointed workers in this area will receive full child safety training.

A Reminder of Safety Rules for ANY adult interaction with children, young people at this church or in any church event outside of the premises
[this excerpt from the Baptist Union Child Protection Policy]

A relationship between an adult and a child or young person can never be a relationship between equals. This is because there is a potential for exploitation and harm of children and young people and therefore adults have a responsibility to ensure that an unequal balance of power is not used for personal advantage or gratification.

Adults working with children/young persons should always avoid behaviour which might be misinterpreted by others. They must act in a way that is considered to be safe practice.

This includes, but is not limited to:

- o Avoiding situations where they are alone with a child or young person
- o Ensuring that they are visible to others when with a child or young person
- o Using an open-door policy where possible – door open and visible to anyone passing
- o Treating all children and young people with respect at all times, regardless of their gender, race, religion, political beliefs, age, physical or mental health, sexual orientation, family and social background, and culture, economic status or criminal background
- o Avoiding circumstances where their behaviour (both verbal and physical) may be misinterpreted as hostile, suggestive, inappropriate, offensive, or neglectful
- o Promoting an environment where children and young people feel safe and comfortable in the care and contact of Eastside Baptist Church
- o Not transporting a child or young person, other than their own, alone at any time other than in an emergency situation
- o Not taking, or displaying, images of children and young people unless they have consent to do so from the child or young person's parents or caregivers, and the child or young person themselves if appropriate
- o Ensuring that all interaction and communication with children and young people, by whatever means, is transparent and open to scrutiny.

Police vetting

All Church workers working with children, either directly or indirectly, must undergo police vetting. Police vetting will be carried out on all Church workers over the age of 16 and will be repeated a minimum of every three (3) years thereafter.

Until such time as the police vetting has been completed, and the results have been received, all newly appointed Eastside Baptist Church workers working with children will be supervised in their role by a Police vetted Church worker and will not be permitted to work alone or carry out any alternative duties.

Training

Appointed workers in this area will receive full child safety training.

A relationship between an adult and a child or young person can never be a relationship between equals. This is because there is a potential for exploitation and harm of children and young people and therefore adults have a responsibility to ensure that an unequal balance of power is not used for personal advantage or gratification.

Adults working with children/young persons should always avoid behaviour which might be misinterpreted by others. They must act in a way that is considered to be safe practice.

This includes, but is not limited to:

- o Avoiding situations where they are alone with a child or young person
- o Ensuring that they are visible to others when with a child or young person
- o Using an open-door policy where possible – door open and visible to anyone passing
- o Treating all children and young people with respect at all times, regardless of their gender, race, religion, political beliefs, age, physical or mental health, sexual orientation, family and social background, and culture, economic status or criminal background
- o Avoiding circumstances where their behaviour (both verbal and physical) may be misinterpreted as hostile, suggestive, inappropriate, offensive, or neglectful
- o Promoting an environment where children and young people feel safe and comfortable in the care and contact of Eastside Baptist Church
- o Not transporting a child or young person, other than their own, alone at any time other than in an emergency situation
- o Not taking, or displaying, images of children and young people unless they have consent to do so from the child or young person's parents or caregivers, and the child or young person themselves if appropriate
- o Ensuring that all interaction and communication with children and young people, by whatever means, is transparent and open to scrutiny.

Police vetting

All Church workers working with children, either directly or indirectly, must undergo police vetting. Police vetting will be carried out on all Church workers over the age of 16 and will be repeated a minimum of every three (3) years thereafter.

Until such time as the police vetting has been completed, and the results have been received, all newly appointed Eastside Baptist Church workers working with children will be supervised in their role by a Police vetted Church worker and will not be permitted to work alone or carry out any alternative duties.

Training

Appointed workers in this area will receive full child safety training.

A Reminder of Safety Rules for ANY adult interaction with children, young people at this church or in any church event outside of the premises
[this excerpt from the Baptist Union Child Protection Policy]

A relationship between an adult and a child or young person can never be a relationship between equals. This is because there is a potential for exploitation and harm of children and young people and therefore adults have a responsibility to ensure that an unequal balance of power is not used for personal advantage or gratification.

Adults working with children/young persons should always avoid behaviour which might be misinterpreted by others. They must act in a way that is considered to be safe practice.

This includes, but is not limited to:

- o Avoiding situations where they are alone with a child or young person
- o Ensuring that they are visible to others when with a child or young person
- o Using an open-door policy where possible – door open and visible to anyone passing
- o Treating all children and young people with respect at all times, regardless of their gender, race, religion, political beliefs, age, physical or mental health, sexual orientation, family and social background, and culture, economic status or criminal background
- o Avoiding circumstances where their behaviour (both verbal and physical) may be misinterpreted as hostile, suggestive, inappropriate, offensive, or neglectful
- o Promoting an environment where children and young people feel safe and comfortable in the care and contact of Eastside Baptist Church
- o Not transporting a child or young person, other than their own, alone at any time other than in an emergency situation
- o Not taking, or displaying, images of children and young people unless they have consent to do so from the child or young person's parents or caregivers, and the child or young person themselves if appropriate
- o Ensuring that all interaction and communication with children and young people, by whatever means, is transparent and open to scrutiny.

Police vetting

All Church workers working with children, either directly or indirectly, must undergo police vetting. Police vetting will be carried out on all Church workers over the age of 16 and will be repeated a minimum of every three (3) years thereafter.

Until such time as the police vetting has been completed, and the results have been received, all newly appointed Eastside Baptist Church workers working with children will be supervised in their role by a Police vetted Church worker and will not be permitted to work alone or carry out any alternative duties.

Training

Appointed workers in this area will receive full child safety training.

A Reminder of Safety Rules for ANY adult interaction with children, young people at this church or in any church event outside of the premises
[this excerpt from the Baptist Union Child Protection Policy]

A relationship between an adult and a child or young person can never be a relationship between equals. This is because there is a potential for exploitation and harm of children and young people and therefore adults have a responsibility to ensure that an unequal balance of power is not used for personal advantage or gratification.

Adults working with children/young persons should always avoid behaviour which might be misinterpreted by others. They must act in a way that is considered to be safe practice.

This includes, but is not limited to:

- o Avoiding situations where they are alone with a child or young person
- o Ensuring that they are visible to others when with a child or young person
- o Using an open-door policy where possible – door open and visible to anyone passing
- o Treating all children and young people with respect at all times, regardless of their gender, race, religion, political beliefs, age, physical or mental health, sexual orientation, family and social background, and culture, economic status or criminal background
- o Avoiding circumstances where their behaviour (both verbal and physical) may be misinterpreted as hostile, suggestive, inappropriate, offensive, or neglectful
- o Promoting an environment where children and young people feel safe and comfortable in the care and contact of Eastside Baptist Church
- o Not transporting a child or young person, other than their own, alone at any time other than in an emergency situation
- o Not taking, or displaying, images of children and young people unless they have consent to do so from the child or young person's parents or caregivers, and the child or young person themselves if appropriate
- o Ensuring that all interaction and communication with children and young people, by whatever means, is transparent and open to scrutiny.

Police vetting

All Church workers working with children, either directly or indirectly, must undergo police vetting. Police vetting will be carried out on all Church workers over the age of 16 and will be repeated a minimum of every three (3) years thereafter.

Until such time as the police vetting has been completed, and the results have been received, all newly appointed Eastside Baptist Church workers working with children will be supervised in their role by a Police vetted Church worker and will not be permitted to work alone or carry out any alternative duties.

Training

Appointed workers in this area will receive full child safety training.

A Reminder of Safety Rules for ANY adult interaction with children, young people at this church or in any church event outside of the premises
[this excerpt from the Baptist Union Child Protection Policy]

A relationship between an adult and a child or young person can never be a relationship between equals. This is because there is a potential for exploitation and harm of children and young people and therefore adults have a responsibility to ensure that an unequal balance of power is not used for personal advantage or gratification.

Adults working with children/young persons should always avoid behaviour which might be misinterpreted by others. They must act in a way that is considered to be safe practice.

This includes, but is not limited to:

- o Avoiding situations where they are alone with a child or young person
- o Ensuring that they are visible to others when with a child or young person
- o Using an open-door policy where possible – door open and visible to anyone passing
- o Treating all children and young people with respect at all times, regardless of their gender, race, religion, political beliefs, age, physical or mental health, sexual orientation, family and social background, and culture, economic status or criminal background
- o Avoiding circumstances where their behaviour (both verbal and physical) may be misinterpreted as hostile, suggestive, inappropriate, offensive, or neglectful
- o Promoting an environment where children and young people feel safe and comfortable in the care and contact of Eastside Baptist Church
- o Not transporting a child or young person, other than their own, alone at any time other than in an emergency situation
- o Not taking, or displaying, images of children and young people unless they have consent to do so from the child or young person's parents or caregivers, and the child or young person themselves if appropriate
- o Ensuring that all interaction and communication with children and young people, by whatever means, is transparent and open to scrutiny.

Police vetting

All Church workers working with children, either directly or indirectly, must undergo police vetting. Police vetting will be carried out on all Church workers over the age of 16 and will be repeated a minimum of every three (3) years thereafter.

Until such time as the police vetting has been completed, and the results have been received, all newly appointed Eastside Baptist Church workers working with children will be supervised in their role by a Police vetted Church worker and will not be permitted to work alone or carry out any alternative duties.

Training

Appointed workers in this area will receive full child safety training.
